Financial impact of health and safety offences increasing

Since the introduction of new sentencing guidelines in 2015/16 for breaches of the Health and Safety at Work Act and its delegated legislation average fines imposed by UK courts have quadrupled and multi million pound penalties on large organisations are becoming commonplace^{1&2}. Can your organisation afford these mostly uninsurable costs?

Leaders at Risk

We should not forget that individuals including Senior Managers are expected to have the capabilities & training to fulfil their roles competently, and should they fail to do so they may also face significant personal liability for any health and safety breaches that arise, even in cases where no injury has resulted.

Do your Leadership team fully understand the implications that failing to maintain adequate workplace health and safety standards can cause? And do they recognise the practical & pragmatic things they can do to support continuous improvement and organisational efficiency?

Virtually delivered IOSH approved training workshops

Our Safety for Executives and Directors training workshop has been approved by the Institution of Occupational Safety and Health (IOSH), the world's largest and only chartered professional body for health and safety professionals. It has been developed to provide strategic level awareness of safety, health and risk management strategy, and in many organisations it has become the benchmark qualification for delivering essential health & safety knowledge to the leadership group. These courses will be run on an "open course" basis and are ideal for new or recently promoted senior managers & directors etc.

Objectives

This course is designed to provide a fundamental understanding of the moral, legal and business case for proactive safety, health and risk management and its integration into holistic business management systems and procedures. This would include:
